Container cold chain generator

What types of gensets do reefer containers use? Operators typically choose between three types of gensets to power reefer containers, depending on how and where the container moves: underslung, clip-on, or on-chassis units. Each serves a specific role in cold chain operations. Underslung gensets mount beneath the chassis of the trailer or container-carrying vehicle. What is a Thermo King generator set? Thermo King's generator set (genset) range provides the vital, independent power supply needed to maintain the cold chain in global container refrigeration. They provide dependable power after your marine containers are unloaded and unplugged from the ship, ready to continue their journey on the road or waiting for further transport on shore. What gensets can I use outside of North America? Undermount or flex mount The SG-3000e by Thermo King is a robust, highly reliable genset fit for use in areas outside North America, Europe or China. Thanks to SG-3000e's 30.1 horsepower engine, you can power any ISO from this genset. One generator set compatible with your entire fleet! How do gensets work? They activate automatically when shore power is lost and keep the reefer container running throughout transfers, crane lifts, or waiting periods. Do gensets meet compliance requirements for pharma and food transport? Modern gensets meet ISO -2 and ATP standards and align with cold chain compliance frameworks for food and pharmaceuticals. Why are gensets important in temperature-controlled logistics? Gensets play a vital role in temperature-controlled logistics across several critical industries. Their ability to deliver continuous, independent power makes them a trusted solution in scenarios where failure is not an option. How does a reefer genset work? In practice, the genset attaches to the container--either underneath the chassis, on the frame, or directly to the trailer. As soon as the reefer disconnects from shore power, whether at a terminal, transfer yard, or mid-route, the genset starts automatically and ensures uninterrupted cooling.
